Dear Emilda

The evaluating editor for your paper has made a request:

Prior to considering whether to send the paper for peer review, I want to see how the raw information would support the setup of the structural models proposed by the author(s), so please ask the corresponding author to provide the original questionnaire, together with the frequency tables of all students' responses given to the questionnaire.

Are you able to provide these, please?

With thanks

Dear Emilda

Please find attached the reviewers' feedback for your paper and their suggestions; some changes have been requested, and both reviewers have supplied annotated copies of your paper. The editor's comments are as follows:

I would agree with both paper reviewers' evaluation and adopt their recommendation, "Accepted on condition that modifications are effected". I want to raise the following issues the authors need to attempt.

1. Please indicate whether the numbers on the paths are path coefficients or p-values.
2. If they are path coefficients, some are pretty small, indicating that the causation effect the authors claimed are not valid.
3. Technically speaking, regression analysis used by the authors are not in the proper place if they have used a sophisticated statistical tool, structural equation modelling technique to illustrate causation effect. Thus, the authors may delete regression analysis.

In addition, please ask the authors to revise their paper according to the reviewers' suggestions, comments; and resubmit for further evaluation.

We would be pleased to publish your paper in our journal ON CONDITION that you are able to attend to all of these issues. To enable our Editor to track the changes you make will you please ensure that you turn on the "Track changes" facility when you revise your paper (you will find this under the Review tab in Word).

When you submit your revised paper, please also provide a short descriptive overview of the changes made to your paper on the attached "author response to reviewers" form. This is quite important to us, as this structured form enables us all to ensure that all the points have been dealt with appropriately.

Please note that there are many versions of Harvard, and if you use automatic referencing software you may not be choosing the correct version. So there are in-text citation and referencing changes needed in order to meet the guidelines we asked you to use on our submissions page at www.ejel.org. The format is very precise and has to be correct. Please use this link <https://library.aru.ac.uk/referencing/harvard.htm> to the guidelines and make the corrections manually. It is quite easy to use this guide, which has a section for citations and a section for references, and gives examples of every type of reference.

For example:-

References:

- all references should have a citation in the text
- brackets are not needed around dates
- page numbers should be preceded by “pp.”
- use “and” instead of “&” in authors’ names
- only the first word of journal article and book titles should start with a capital letter
- journal titles should have a capital letter for each major word ( ie. Excluding stop-words like: the, and, or but, etc.) and be in italics
- use full journal titles, not abbreviations
- journal articles need volume, issue and pages; after volume and issue number use a comma, following the correct format, eg. 17(3), pp. 23-35
- unless there is a DOI (which is a permanent link), online references need an Available at and Accessed Date in the correct formats; if you don’t have a record of this, just check that the link still works and use the date you do this
- DOI references still need volume, issue and page numbers, if they exist
- books should have place of publication before publisher; if you don’t have a copy, take this from a library catalogue record. Book titles should be in italics
- proceedings of a conference should include the place it was held and the dates as well as the conference/society information, place of publication and publisher
- for chapters in books, full details are also needed for the book – editor/s, title, place of publication, publisher, pages
- proceedings of a conference should include the place it was held and the dates as well as the conference/society information, place of publication and publisher

In-text citations:

- all citations should be listed in references
- use “and” instead of “&” in authors’ names
- use “et al.” where there are four or more authors; for three or fewer, list all names.

I have attached your paper with some attendant comments, but as you have used referencing software, I am unable to make corrections and comments in the correct place.

It would be helpful if you could please acknowledge receipt of this email and confirm that you still wish to proceed. Please also ensure you quote the above reference number on communications regarding this submission, as omitting it may delay our reply.

It would be nice to have your revised paper by 11th June if possible, please. If you need more time, please let me know.

With thanks

Regards

Meryl

Combined Reviews for Author/s

Comments to be forwarded to the author/s

Paper Reference: EL 3970

Paper Title: The impact of external factors on the acceptance of educational technology among the Indonesian Junior school teachers

REVIEWER 1

A. Review of Paper

1. Introduction: Provides an adequate framing for the paper, and a sufficient overview of the background to the research problem

Poor					Excellent
1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9	10

Supporting comments

The authors have given some background that points to the study itself but have failed to question the literature they reviewed. There is no current debate on the introduction as the authors only cited literature which support their point of view. The existence and the justification of the research problem is not made clear in the background. The authors need to be concrete and provide evidence.

2. Research problem: The research problem is articulated clearly, with an appropriate rationale and justification of its importance.

Poor					Excellent
1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9	10

Supporting comments

Though the authors tried to bring out the research problem in the background, the problem is not articulated clearly. The problem seems to be too hypothetical. Additionally, there is no appropriate rationale and justification of its importance.

3. Literature Review: Encompasses a comprehensive and exhaustive coverage of available appropriate and contemporary literature. Furthermore, the literature review entails a critical analysis which further expounds the research problem.

Poor					Excellent
1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9	10

Supporting comments

The study contains literature review in the introduction section and in the theoretical background. Most of the literature is relevant and timely, however, there is not enough literature in the introduction with regard to the key themes of the study. The authors have failed to provide a critical analysis of the literature they cite thus making their review lack a debating taste.

4. Research design and methods: The research design is clearly described, with adequate justification for the choice of methods and a clear account of how the evidence has been analysed. In general, acceptable

norms of good research practice have been upheld in the conduct of the research.
Poor								Excellent
1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9	10
Supporting comment The research design is clearly described except that justification for the selection and number of schools selected are not provided. It is also not shown how such schools were selected. In some cases, there are a lot of repetitions that could be avoided. The authors need to revise the text and check their selection of words and English grammar. Some procedures and measures are not clearly described for the reader to know what they are. See the text.

5. Findings and discussion: The evidence or empirical data presented in the article (where applicable) are adequate. The discussion is detailed, and indicates depth of insight which provides a firm foundation for making a contribution to the body of knowledge.
1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9	10
Supporting comments The findings are well presented. The discussion is short but fairly done. I am surprised that the literature cited in the discussion is only supporting the current study, suggesting no contradictory studies!! Please check the long sentences and the mixing up of tenses and words in some sentences. You need to have the work edited again.

6. Contribution of the paper: Overall, the paper makes a useful contribution to the promotion and development of new knowledge in the field, and will generally generate further interest and debate.
Poor								Excellent
1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9	10
Supporting comments The paper clearly shows the contribution. This is a powerful part of the paper.

7. Conclusions: The conclusions demonstrate a firm grasp of the key issues, summarises the salient contributions of the paper, and provide some direction for future work.
Poor								Excellent
1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9	10
Supporting comments I could not award anything here as I could not find the conclusion(s) in the paper. The authors jumped from discussion to implications.

8. Technical issues: Evaluate the overall technical quality of the paper.

Poor					Excellent
1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9	10
Supporting comments  There are few technical issues which need to be addressed in the abstract, and methodology section. See comments in the specific sections.

If any of the following technical aspects of the paper requires specific improvement, please indicate in the comment column. Leave blank if no improvements are required.

Technical issue	Comment
Title of paper
Abstract (300 - 500 words) which includes answers to the following questions: i. what is the purpose of the research? ii. what methods are used to achieve the objectives of the research? iii. what are the most important results of the research? iv. how is this research supporting e-learning practice? v. how is this research advancing the e-learning knowledge area?	Specific objectives of the study are not highlighted in the abstract thus making it difficult to link the results with the key objectives. There is a need to show how the key findings of the study support elearning practice in a more concrete way rather than what is stated in the abstract.  The study adds some new information regarding motivation and TAM, something which is a unique contribution of the paper to the e-learning industry
Language, grammar and spelling	Some sentences are too long such that meaning is lost. The language is fair but needs some further editing
Structure of paper	Some parts of the paper are missing, e.g, the conclusion part is not shown.
In-text citation style	Most of the citations are okay, a few needs some checking
All citations are included in the reference list	Yes
References and citations are presented in the Harvard style described at https://libweb.anglia.ac.uk/referencing/harvard.htm	In text citations look okay but I see the use of capital letters when referring to names of the author, something which is not found in the reference guide.
Originality of the work: is there any evidence of plagiarism or self-plagiarism in the paper?	I did not find anything like that in paper. The papers appears very original to me.

9. Additional comment or suggestions

In addition to the comments above please indicate any other suggestions for the authors to improve the paper.

The paper looks okay in most parts but the authors need to work well in the introductory sections and the methodology part. They also need to make sure they bring out the debate regarding the theme of topic in both, introductory sections and the literature review. They need to question the literature they visit and not just cite the ones which support their position.

B. Final Recommendation

I recommend that the paper be (please mark with an X):

Thankyou very much, Emilda, and sorry for the delay in replying.

I see that you have left blank the section for Editor's comments in the Author's response form; can you confirm, please, whether you have addressed these issues? If so, please can you complete this section of the form, and re-send it?

As a reminder, this is what the editor said:

I want to raise the following issues the authors need to attempt.

1. Please indicate whether the numbers on the paths are path coefficients or p-values.
2. If they are path coefficients, some are pretty small, indicating that the causation effect the authors claimed are not valid.
3. Technically speaking, regression analysis used by the authors are not in the proper place if they have used a sophisticated statistical tool, structural equation modelling technique to illustrate causation effect. Thus, the authors may delete regression analysis.

I can also see that the references have not been corrected to the specified Harvard convention, but let's leave that until after we have news from the editor.

Dear Emilda

I am pleased to hear that your paper has now been accepted for publication in the next available issue of EJEL, which I think will be volume 20 issue 2.

As you will remember from the submission guidelines, in accordance with the practice in the open access community authors are asked to pay a nominal sum to publish in EJEL, which is intended to cover some of the costs of publishing. The publication charge at the time you submitted the paper was GBP 250 (plus 20% VAT), payable only after the paper has been accepted for publication. There is no charge to access the journal on screen or by printing or downloading the papers.

We will shortly create an invoice which we can send you by email. Please would you advise to whom, or to which institution, the invoice should be made out, the full postal address, and provide any institutional information we should quote in order to enable your accounts department to process the invoice, and your institution's VAT number. If we have the VAT number, we can remove the VAT charge. Without this, we are obliged to add the VAT, which brings the fee up to GBP 360. Upon payment the paper will be passed to the typesetter and as soon as she has it ready to publish you will receive a page-proof to check.

In the meantime, I have attached the current version of your paper with the referencing corrections done, showing Track Changes. Please will you add the byline to this copy of the paper - the authors' names, affiliations and email addresses. Then please Accept All Changes, save the paper with the filename EL3970 final Sulasmi, and return it to me as soon as you can.

With thanks
