SECTION II: Comments on manuscript

EVALUATION AREAS	COMMENTS: Please type in the space below
1. Significance and relevance of themes in introduction	Religious harmony in Indonesia still necessitates special attention since a balance must be established among the country's six religions. From a political and legal standpoint, examining the Religious Harmony Forum's performance in sustaining religious harmony in Indonesia is vital. The authors correctly claim that communication is crucial in building intra- and inter-religious harmony and preventing religion from being politicized in Indonesia. The manuscript propagates original research that makes a fair contribution. The paper provides adequate background information as to persuade and stimulate readers and hopefully leaders to proceed to the rest of the paper. The discussion is sufficient in terms of the methodological approach. An interesting manuscript written on a significant matter.

2. Sound argumentation	The article comprises critical thinking and the author/s clearly states their substantiated judgment, a fair evaluation of the article's grounding, and the supporting arguments made.
3. Literature usage	The work demonstrates good knowledge, interpretation and application of relevant literature as it relates to Indonesian society as such. Contemporary literature review is used from relevant sources of evidence.
4. Methodology	The descriptive qualitative method was employed for the investigation. A normative juridical approach was followed and it is a legal research methodology that bases its analysis on relevant laws and regulations to the legal issues under consideration. There was also a literature study using relevant sources.
5. Critique quality	There is a fluency between the objectives and the findings. The critique adopted a credible academic writing style and it has a sensible composition.
6. Sound conclusions/ results and /or recommendations	Promoting religious harmony through the Religious Harmony Forum is fundamental in anticipation of the politicization of religion in Indonesia. There are expanding worries about the role of religion, particularly Islam, in Indonesia's largely democratic society. The interfaith movement is straining with the expanding strength of radical groups on the political scene in Indonesia, markedly by justifying the politicization of religion. The Religious Harmony Forum is being improvised from political and legal perspectives so that it does not merely exist as a formal process but has a vital role in maintaining religious harmony in Indonesia that can be steadied through political and legal methods. It is centrally critical to encourage the Draft Law on Religious Harmony to be ratified soon so as to further reinforce the presence of the Religious Harmony Forum in sustaining religious harmony in Indonesia. Verbal communication used by FKUB through books, etc is important.

	A generally interesting and worthwhile manuscript. Sanctioning publication after minor revisions.
